Art Unit: 1754

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 43-81 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Rodriguez et al '951. No distinction is seen between the hydrogen storage system and process disclosed by Rodriguez et al '931, and that recited in claims 43-81. Rodriguez et al '931 disclose at col. 5, lines 42-53 that the carbon nanofibers may be of any suitable shape including twisted, spiral, helical coiled and ribbon-like. These shapes appear to be non-planar. In any event, it would be prima facie obvious to employ a non-planar nanofiber in the system of Rodriguez et al '931, since Rodriguez et al '931 teaches at col. 5, line 42 that the shape of the nanofibers may be "any suitable shape". The storage material of Rodriguez et al '931 would inherently have a binding energy to adsorbed hydrogen substantially greater than 0.10 eV, since the nanofibers employed in the reference are non-planar. In any event, applicants' specification implies in Paragraph [0085] that the binding energy of a planar storage material would be about 0.10 eV. Accordingly the binding energy of the system of Rodriguez et al '931 is considered to have a binding energy "of at least about 0.13

eV', since the term "about" provides for some tolerance. The term "about 0.13 eV" would embrace values at least as low as 0.10 eV. There is no evidence on record showing that the binding energy of the storage material of Rodriguez et al '931 would have a binding energy less than 0.10 eV. On the contrary, it would appear that the binding energy of the storage material of Rodriguez et al '931 would be about 0.10 eV, since applicants' specification discloses in Paragraph [0085] that the binding energy $E_b(C, \text{charged})$ is about 0.15 eV, about 50% bigger than $E_b(C, \text{planar})$.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
